The Week-End

The Seascout base at Toms River concluded the most enjoyable ten day trip ever conducted for any Scouts in Bucks County. On Tuesday the Seascouts left the base at Barnegat Bay for their most extended trip. Arriving at Tuckerton Wireless Station, which is one of the most powerful inter-oceanic stations in the country, the Scouts were conducted on a tour of both the receiving and sending units. While at the receiving station, a message was received from the Graf Zeppelin, giving its location, which gave an added thrill to the visit.

Continuing down to Atlantic City through the courtesy of the Atlantic City Boy Scouts and the Convention Hall officials, a tour was made of the new convention hall under the leadership of official guides. To the enjoyment of the Scouts and the staff, every one of them went to the stepple chase and enjoyed three hours of fun and amusement as they "followed the leader" on all the rides. The Seascouts slept under the boardwalk on Tuesday evening, which was quite an unusual experience for most of the boys.

Starting from the Inlet at 8 o'clock, with Dr. John J. Hargrave, Bristol, added to the party, a start was made for a deep sea fishing trip. Half of the campers completed the trip, while the other half were so seasick, that there is still doubt in their minds as to where the deep sea fishing trip was made. The seasick Seascouters were efficiently and capably led by an experienced "Seasickler," Walt V. Rutherford, Doylestown, whose leadership was of such a nature that it was soon followed by half of the crew. After catching ten blue fish, three of which were caught by Dr. Hargrave, the schooner on which the trip was made, returned to the Inlet much to the joy of several longing dry land Seascouts.

Going to the lighthouse at the Inlet proved an interesting experience, especially the apparatus used in producing different types of lights. The trip concluded Wednesday afternoon and a tired but happy group of Seascouts arrived back at the base.

On Thursday and Friday, trips were made to the life saving station at Seaside Heights, where special instruction was given by the Coast Guard in artificial respiration, coast guard routine and the handling of beach apparatus. Mahlon Detweiler, of Perkasie, proved his ability in handling a life line gun through his registering a perfect shot over the practice mast.

On Friday afternoon the entire camp visited Lakehurst and saw the Graf Zeppelin at very close range through the courtesy of the Lakehurst officials. Friday evening was shore leave at Seaside Heights and Saturday concluded the program which was greatly enjoyed by Seascouts and staff.

James Townsend, of Langhorne, the program orderly at Camp Buccoo during this past summer, is leaving on Sunday, Sept. 15th, for the Mohawk Indian village at the Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Mass., to represent the Bucks County Boy Scouts Council. Many activities take place at the Exposition which make the opportunity of a scout visiting the exposition an outstanding experience in his life. Living in a model Scout Camp in many types of shelters. During the whole week that the Council representatives are at the exposition demonstrations are given for services rendered at the mammoth merit badge exhibit. The annual award to the four Scouts doing the outstanding work at Camp Buccoo goes to Carl Leidy, Doylestown No. 2, from the Indian Village, Vance Forepaugh, Trevoise No. 1, from the Daniel Boone Stockade and from the Scout Camp, Eugene Swank, Trevoise No. 1, and Leroy Nowack, South Langhorne No. 1. The four Scouts will leave on Wednesday, Sept. 18th, returning Sunday, September 22nd, for a five day tour in which they will visit over 100 places of interest, including Bear Mountain Bridge, dress parade at West Point, Jacob's Ladder Trail, two days at the Mohawk Indian Village, Springfield, Mass., Yale Bowl and concluding with two days' sightseeing in New York City. This tour has been conducted for the two previous years at Camp Buccoo and has been won the third year by these four Scouts for their outstanding work during the 1929 camp season.

COUNTY BRIDGES IN VERY GOOD CONDITION

Commissioners Began As Far
As 1906 to Build Concrete Structures

TO REBUILD 75 MORE

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12.—Bridge tragedies growing out of huge trucks breaking through bridges in another county is a reminder of the unusual situation that has been confronting public officials in charge of these structures in the past few years.

Bucks county, for instance, has about 350 bridges. Thanks to the foresight of County Commissioners since 1906, nothing but concrete structures of the strongest type have been built. Added to these there are many of the iron bridges which were considered the most desirable type between about 1880 and 1900, and some of the old wooden bridges which were earlier constructed, in addition to a number of exceptionally fine stone arch bridges.

Because of the early decision of the county to build only reinforced concrete structures over streams, this county is exceptionally fortunate in having, perhaps, a larger number of bridges capable of meeting modern requirements than most of the counties of the State.

In the past 23 years the boards of Commissioners have not only replaced old bridges with structures of concrete but they have built many new ones and have strengthened a great number of stone arch bridges.

Another fortunate circumstance for the taxpayers was the passage of legislation recently turning bridges on state highways over to the State for maintenance.

However, County Commissioners' Clerk Cadwallader says, there are still about 75 bridges in the county which will have to be replaced as rapidly as funds are available, but they are principally on the side roads.

Nearly all of the bridges on the state and county roads, the principal arteries carrying the heaviest traffic, have bridges strong enough to take care of modern traffic.

"No one ever dreamed when most of our 350 bridges were built that there would be trucks the size of freight cars traveling over them," said Clerk Cadwallader this morning. "That has been a development of the past few years, and naturally it has been impossible to rebuild all of the bridges to meet this demand for safety. The best the county can do is to rebuild the bridges as fast as money is available and that calls for work on the principal highways first."

"New legislation will place about 90 of the bridges in charge of the State, but I suppose there are still seventy-five for which the county must make provision as soon as possible. Not all of these are large bridges, but bridge building is an expensive proposition."

"Fortunately the foresight of Commissioners in more than the last two decades in building only concrete spans has saved the county's taxpayers an enormous sum of money. Many of them were built when prices were lower."

"We still have a number of iron bridges in good condition, but not capable, I suppose, of withstanding the strain of some of the enormous trucks that are seen on the highways today. Fortunately they are on side roads. In their day they were considered exceptionally strong. They were for traffic of their time, and even for much larger loads, and they are still in excellent condition."

"However, it must be plain to any one that Bucks county is exceptionally fortunate with respect to its bridges."

The Office of Tax Collector

(EDITORIAL)

IT has often been said, that, "The things with which we are the most familiar, we know the least about." Perhaps the individual who collects the taxes is the best known person in our political life. Political upheavals may occur, the nation may plunge itself into war, great storms may devastate vast areas of the world, but each year come what may, the tax collector sits in his accustomed place to collect the taxes.

But familiar as he is, how many know anything about his office, or the general system of taxation, employed in communities like Bristol, to raise funds to support the local government? Every few years assessors are elected by the voters, but how many electors realize the part which they play in our scheme of taxation?

Each year during the month of April the assessors in the different wards revise their record of assessments, and send them to the County Commissioners at Doylestown. The whole system of taxation is built around these reports filed at Doylestown by the assessors. The commissioners have copies transcribed and deliver them to the Town Councils, school boards and supervisors in the various boroughs and townships. The secretaries of these bodies, after the tax rate for the next year has been adjusted, proceed to figure out the amount of tax each citizen must pay. In the meantime, the Finance Committees of the two bodies have been at work, and have made out the budgets, which show how the money to be received from taxes has been apportioned for the year. The tax rate has been previously set, at a figure to meet the expenses for the year as exhibited in the budget.

The various committees of the two bodies, take up their respective work, before the taxes begin to come in. It can, therefore, be seen how important a factor the collection of taxes becomes, in the successful operation of the Borough Government as well as the Department of Education and supervisors. All the plans of both bodies are made for the year, and the contracts for the teachers in the public schools are signed subject to the anticipated revenue to be received from the tax levy.

The next step is the turning over of the tax duplicate to the tax-collector. His office is one of great responsibility. Before he can begin the collection of the taxes, he must file with the school board, a bond for $30,000, and with Town Council a bond for $10,000, in the Borough of Bristol, to insure the two bodies against loss, should he prove unfaithful in the discharge of his duties.

The collection of the taxes is not a simple affair, wherein the collector may be guided by his own volition, or show favoritism, but to the contrary it is a cold blooded business proposition. When he accepts the tax duplicate, he assumes the responsibility to collect not a part of it, but all of it, subject to the final determination of the two bodies when he makes his final report, as to what remits shall be considered and what corrections are allowable. He has absolutely no right to excuse any one from the payment of taxes. This power rests alone with the governing bodies of the two branches of the borough government. To the tax collector all citizens are alike, and his one duty is the collection of taxes. If he is neglectful of his duties, he will find himself in the unpleasant position, where he will have to face legal action. An irresponsible and unreliable tax collector would necessitate a raise in the tax rate to meet the operating expense of the two branches of Borough Government, as whatever amount represented in the budget is uncollected, would have to be made up by an increase in tax rate for the succeeding year.

It is not hard, therefore, for all good citizens to understand the seriousness attached to the selection of a tax collector. The maintenance and success of the borough government, as well as its advancement and development, is dependent upon the type of man, who is selected as tax collector. If the taxes are not properly collected, all progress is retarded. The school board is in even a worse position than the Town Council, for two-thirds of its income has been pledged for teachers' salaries and contracts signed, before a dollar of taxes has been received.

In the person of Louis B. Girton, who has announced himself as a candidate for tax collector, is represented a citizen who possesses all the qualifications for that office. He is a man of business experience, whose years of service in Borough Council, where he has been called upon to serve upon its most important committees, has given him knowledge of the close relationship which exists between the Borough Government and the tax collector's office, which peculiarly fits him for the position of tax collector. In addition his standing, reputation and business success, equip him to accept a full measure of the responsibility, which is vitally necessary in one, who shall assume the duties of this important office. The voters of Bristol will make no mistake in nominating Louis B. Girton as Tax Collector, if they desire a faithful, energetic and successful operation of that office.

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP GIRL TO ACCEPT SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED TO HER BY THE STATE LEGISLATURE FOR SUPREMACY IN EXAMINATION CONDUCTED BY STATE

Miss Florence G. Gerhart, Valedictorian of June Class of 1929, Has Also Won Many Medals and Letters for Supremacy in Athletic and Scholastic Events—Takes First Place in Examination Conducted in Many High Schools

Florence G. Gerhart

Miss Florence G. Gerhart, valedictorian of the June class of 1929, Bensalem Township High School, and winner of many medals and letters for supremacy in athletic and scholastic events, will on September 25th take advantage of the scholarship accorded her by the Pennsylvania State Legislature.

The young woman took first place in Bucks County in the examinations conducted in many four-year high schools. Each year during the month of May the questions are sent to every four-year high school throughout the state, the names of those recommended for participation having previously been sent to the State Department. The individual turning in the best set of answers from each county is awarded a four-year scholarship, the institution of higher learning being selected by the individual from a list submitted.

Miss Gerhart plans to specialize in physical education at Temple University, Philadelphia, for the four years. This phase of educational work seems to be the best possible choice for the Bensalem Township young woman, who resides near Flushing. During the past few years she has won 17 medals for athletic events, the majority being gained through participation in races at the Bucks County Interscholastic meet held annually at George School. The student-athlete during her high school days was particularly interested in high and broad jumping, and running, "and in fact all athletics."

Among other trophies in the possession of the Bensalem Township girl are: A cup presented by the Parent-Teacher Association of the school for attaining the highest average in the senior class; a medal, the gift of an individual, to the one securing the highest average during the last high school year; a five dollar gold piece presented at commencement time to the girl in the senior class proving to be the most valuable athlete in the class; ten letters, eight being for supremacy in athletic events, one secured for debating with the Bensalem high team, and one presented for her work in scholastic events and debating at the Bucks County meet at George School.

Many other honors have been secured by Miss Gerhart during her recent years in public school. For the past six years she has had perfect attendance, and with honors led her class last spring which totalled 18.

Much joy was secured by the honored one during her grade years at Bristol Township schools, and during her periods of study at Bensalem Township high. She is now looking forward to increased interest in her subjects at Temple, and her former teachers and school-mates will watch with interest her progress there.

RECORD SENTENCE FOR QUAKERTOWN DRIVER

Frederick Anderson, 18, Given Nine Months and $25 Fine

JUDGE LECTURES HIM

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12.—A record sentence of nine months in the county prison and a fine of $25 was imposed yesterday in the Bucks county criminal court on Frederick Anderson, eighteen, of Quakertown, for operating his automobile while drunk. Judge William G. Thomas, of Mauch Chunk, pronounced sentence.

Anderson was in trouble a short time ago for stabbing his brother. He operated a car in the last offense that bore a 1927 license and was not tired on the rear wheels. The car was driven through a fence on the property of Samuel Koehler, Quakertown. Anderson was found guilty. He denied that he had taken a single drink although several witnesses described him as being drunk.

The defendant narrowly missed receiving the maximum sentence of $200 fine and three years in prison. A jury deliberated six hours and recommended him to the mercy of the court. Judge Thomas declared that the mercy recommendation cut down the sentence.

"I did not believe your story and neither did the jury. Had you pleaded guilty and made a clean breast of it, the story would have been different," Judge Thomas told him.

"If there is anything in the belief that long sentences in jail instill fear in offenders it certainly is in cases of drunken drivers that such sentences should be imposed," the Carbon County judge added. "I believe drunken drivers are about the worst menace that we have."

WHEN IS A MAN UNDER INFLUENCE OF "HOME BREW"?

Question Discussed at Trial of Philadelphia Man Arrested near Here

PHYSICIANS DIFFER

Other Court Cases Are On Trial Before Judge Thomas

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12.—The amount of "home brew" that it takes for an average man to become under the influence of intoxicating liquor, came up for discussion yesterday in the trial of a case before Judge William G. Thomas, of Mauch Chunk, when Elmer Fesler, of Philadelphia, was charged with operating an automobile while drunk near Bristol.

One physician who examined the defendant told the Court that he found Fesler "under the influence" and that in his opinion he was not fit to operate a car. That physician was Dr. J. Fred Wagner, of Bristol, before whom Patrolman Rubincam took the defendant for an examination.

The defense attorney, John L. DuBois, of Doylestown, called Dr. Claude L. Taylor, of Doylestown, who testifying as an expert in the case, said that it was his opinion, from evidence presented by the Commonwealth, that Fesler was not under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The jury deliberated less than an hour and returned a verdict of guilty. Fesler immediately took steps to apply for a new trial and was released under $1,000 bond.

The Commonwealth's case presented by Acting Assistant District Attorney, Calvin S. Boyer, of Doylestown, brought forth witnesses who testified that liquor was smelled on Fesler's breath, that his eyes were bloodshot, that he staggered, talked in a peculiar manner and was found under the influence as a result of Dr. Wagner's examination of the man.

On the witness stand Fesler denied that he was drunk but admitted that he was "partly under the influence of 'home brew' that he received at a friend's house."

"Do you want this jury to believe," Mr. Boyer asked Dr. Taylor, "that in spite of the fact that liquor was smelled on his breath, his gait was not steady and that Dr. Wagner believed him unfit to drive an automobile, that you do not believe that liquor caused this condition?"

"From the testimony I have heard in the case I do not believe that Fesler was under the influence of intoxicating liquor," the physician replied.

"In the medical profession it is a recognized fact that people with not more than one ounce of 100 proof liquor in them; that is 50 per cent alcohol by volume, are not under the influence of intoxicating liquor," Dr. Taylor replied.

An effort to establish the alcoholic content of various 'home brews' was made in this case but Judge Thomas ruled it out.

Judge Keller yesterday directed that bench warrants be issued in two cases including John Hottinger, defendant, and his bondsmen, Nick Stadler, and James J. McGarvey, of Philadelphia, defendant, and his bondsmen, George Sutton. Both are charged with operating automobiles while drunk. A bench warrant was issued for John Frisch but his bondsmen, Louis Schwartz, of Doylestown, and his attorney, informed the Court that Frisch has been dead for some time. The case was nolle-prossed.

Judge Thomas yesterday directed a jury to acquit P. Landolfi, of Philadelphia, on a charge of assault and battery but upon agreement of both sides, Landolfi was directed to pay the costs of the prosecution. The defendant had been in an automobile accident on the Lincoln Highway near Langhorne and an altercation followed in which Landolfi was charged with striking another motorist with his fist.

Wilson Fulmer, of Quakertown, charged with surety, was before Judge Thomas yesterday. Emanuel Mumbauer, of Geryville, the defendant's father-in-law, testified that he was afraid of Fulmer who has acted suspiciously toward him for some time.

Fulmer told Judge Thomas that Mumbauer would not allow him to come to the Mumbauer home to see his wife who is not living with him at the present time. Mumbauer said that he ordered Fulmer away from the property several times and that he will not allow him to take Mrs. Fulmer away at the present time because he "did not do right by her."

Judge Thomas ordered Fulmer to pay the costs of the case and to enter into his own recognizance in the sum of $300 to keep the peace, especially toward his father-in-law.

"Mumbauer's house is his own castle and you have no right there if you are not wanted, even though your wife is there," Judge Thomas told Fulmer.

Thomas O'Malley, of Philadelphia, who was convicted of operating his automobile in Hultsville on August

AUTUMN WILL SOON BE HERE

"Light frost was felt here today," read dispatches that will soon be appearing with more and more regularity.

Light frost? Why that means autumn is just around the corner. In a few weeks the frost will be on the pumpkin and the hoar upon the vine. And we thought summer had scarcely commenced. How the seasons fly. Away last spring, summer had seemed, in prospect, such a long, pleasant period of fine weather and pleasures.

In the spring one looks forward to summer with much longing. There were to be picnics, automobile trips, swimming, fishing, excursions to the mountains and seashore; and two weeks' vacation. So much was planned, and so little done. Now, as it draws to a close, one realizes there were more events than dates on that summer program. When autumn comes we count the dreams of spring that have not been realized during the summer. It is so all through life. Happy times and soul-stirring seasons are just ahead. But when we come to them they are crowded and short.

Though we reluctantly surrender the pleasures and pastimes of hot summer days, we turn to autumn with cheery anticipations of cozy evenings with radio and book, motoring in the rare autumn air, evenings at the theater, and harvest feasts.

The poet, who in the spring asked, "What is so rare as a day in June?" probably supplied his own answer when the fall came around. Nature makes her perfect days in September and October. Do not travelers invariably say they would exchange all the fine weather of the tropics for the days of autumn in the temperate zone? They are man's compensation for the dreary days of winter and the sultry days of summer.

SERIOUS SIDE OF COLLEGE

It is frequently said in deprecation of college men that they go to college to have a good time first and an education afterwards. Apparently some good people believe that it is purely accidental when a young man proves that he learned something in college besides social etiquette and athletics.

The facts in the case are that no man or woman ever left an institution of higher learning without some degree of mental improvement, that the serious side of college life is never seen by the public, while the lighter side is always on display and that very often getting an education is a struggle instead of a saturnalia of spending and sporting.

All colleges and universities report an increasing number of students working their way through school and the number of college men and women who are not gainfully employed during the summer vacation period is now negligible. As far as working at their studies is concerned, there is no American institution of higher education which will tolerate low scholastic standards. The individual student must be 75 per cent efficient or leave by request.

A colonel who "humiliated" a major-general is at liberty. We sometimes wonder how he is on today.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR?

Bobby Doyle, framed by danger Don Wilkes and his gang, and sentenced to prison for twenty years for killing a policeman, is aided to escape from jail by his fiancée, Beebe Jarrett. Beebe is assisted by Johnny the Hop, a dope fiend, who hides Bob in a secret room in his apartment. The day after Bobby's return, Don Wilkes is visited in his apartment by an over-dressed woman, Pess, who demands money to help Mike, one of the gang, who is laid up with a gunshot wound. Don demurs, but finally gives Beebe the money. He has been giving Beebe money, telling her that it is due Bobby, and is evidently in love with her. He tells Inspector Wilnot and Biff Myers, assigned to the case, that Johnny has hidden Bobby. Johnny is arrested, deprived of his drug and put through the third degree. He tells where Bobby is hidden, then rushes to Beebe's home and confesses to her and Don, who is standing her, that he has "squealed." Don appears righteously indignant and warns him to leave town immediately. Meanwhile the police rush to Bobby's hiding place. —Now go on with the story.

these strips had seemed to hold had vanished.

"You're a fool, Myers," said Inspector Wilnot quietly.

"The kid tricked me. He was hanging there—Kelley saw him, too. I thought—"

Wilnot was not even listening to Biff's shamefaced explanations. He strode to the single dormer window. It was open.

From down below there rose a sudden clangor, a police whistle blowing shrilly, shouts, and suddenly an automatic spattered a rapid series of shots.

"You stay where you are," Wilnot ordered Biff, adding even in this moment of confusion, "and if any dead ones comes walking in here, just arrest 'em first, and find out if they're dead afterwards."

Inspector Wilnot vanished through the panel.

Bobby Doyle had tried to pass the time after Beebe's brief visit by reading a magazine, the contents of which he already knew. Then he had found one story that he had previously skipped.

The Story of an Escape

It was a tale of the French revolution, the account of a loyal servant and a hunted nobleman. The reign of terror was taking its daily toll. The sharp knives of the guillotine knew daily victims. Into the house of the aristocrat, there came the officers of Robespierre.

The servant had worked with rapid fingers, tied a rope under his master's chin and jaw, lifted him, bound the loose end of the rope over a beam. The servants of the guillotine had departed frustrated but satisfied. The aristocrat and his servant escaped at nightfall, and slipped aboard a sailing ship bound for America.

The little story had made an im-

CHAPTER X.

THE police car, that tore away from headquarters not long after Johnny had confessed Bobby Doyle's hiding place, carried enough men to round up a gang.

Armed and expectant they stared ahead of them. They were out after big game—the man hunt. In this case it was a desperate man, who would fight for his life, and one of their number might not see daylight again.

The siren that had cleared the way through traffic was turned off long before they rode up Tenth avenue. Biff Myers did not want to broadcast his coming in that fashion. He parked the big car on the opposite side of the street, and ordered his men.

As they crossed to the shabby house where Johnny had his room, a little curious crowd collected, and stood outside to stare up at the building.

Biff left two of his men below who ordered the crowd to move on. With the rest, he cautiously climbed the stairs until they reached Johnny's room.

In the darkness he fumbled for a skeleton key, and with his gun thrust out straight before him, opened the simple lock. He struck a match, lit the gas, turning back to caution Kelley and Tommy, who followed close on his heels.

But though they walked on tiptoes, the rough flooring creaked under their weight.

Biff motioned silently, and they lifted the bed away from the wall. Getting down on his hands in the shadow, with a flashlight he was able to pick out the panel immediately. He tried it cautiously at first, then with a sudden sharp lunge sent it flying open. He gripped his automatic more tightly. There was a grin on his broad red face. He motioned Kelley to follow him.

Biff Myers stepped inside, flashed his light on the ladder leading to the attic.

A Dead Silence

"All right, Doyle!" he shouted. "The jig is up. Come on down, and come with your hands in the air."

There was a dead silence.

"You hear what I'm telling you," Biff called, after that dead pause. "You ain't got a chance."

Still no sound broke the silence. Biff nodded to Kelley. He gripped his automatic tightly. He was no coward. He climbed up the ladder first.

Kelley heard his exclamation before he could join him. When he did, he saw for himself a sight that froze him. He had not been on the force long enough to take things like this in the matter-of-fact way of Biff Myers.

The two officers stared at the body of Bobby Doyle, hanging from the rafter, with a rope made from the torn strips of his own blankets. Tommy crossed himself. But Biff was looking at that still figure with the detached interest of science.

"Cronked himself. Cheated us, by God! The kid lost his nerve. He must have heard we were coming for him. Well, Kelley, get a move on you. We gotta send for the medical examiner."

They made their way together down the ladder. When they had reached Johnny's room, they saw they had been joined by Inspector Wilnot.

"The dope was right, Inspector," Biff said. "He's there."

"Where?" Wilnot asked. "He best us to it. Hung himself. Phone the coroner's office, Kelley."

No Sign of Anyone

Inspector Wilnot shook his head. "Hung himself, eh? Poor kid. Well, let's have a look at him."

Biff guided the way. When Biff had reached the top of the ladder, he turned his flash downwards so that Wilnot could see his way. When Wilnot had reached the attic, he flash was turned on the room's self.

LIVE where you work

Many people employed in Bristol are commuting to and from their work each day. This means an unnecessary expense and a waste of time. They must leave home earlier and return later than if they lived in the town where they are employed. They have less time for pleasure and less time to spend with their families than if they resided here.

Why commute?

Bristol as a place of residence offers every opportunity to be found in a large city. There are paved streets, sanitary sewers, good schools and churches of every denomination; periodic collection of ashes and garbage, police protection and ample space for outdoor recreation.

Housing is adequate

Housing facilities are adequate to meet the needs of all. There are dwellings here which will meet the needs of almost every family. Big six room houses with all modern conveniences including front porches and rear yards. They rent as low as $25 per month, and are comparable in type to those in the larger cities renting for nearly twice the amount.

You're a part of the community

If you live in Bristol you are a part of the community. You are not lost in the crowds of a great city where often times your next door neighbor doesn't know you. Live in Bristol and participate in its affairs and you will find life much more worth the living.

COMMUNICATION

Editor Courier:

Are you a good citizen (100%)?
How do you answer the following?
Do you think it a duty to find out what kind of a candidate is running for office, and go to the polls and vote whichever ticket you think good for the community and country?

Or, do you vote for the good fellow, or the down and out, expecting them to make a success of a big business, when they have failed in a small one; or take graft, when in need and the temptation so big?

Or, are you one that does not have time (shopping, cards or "What's the use?" being the only excuse) then complain afterward of those you put in office through your negligence.

MRS. CARRIE BETZ

"For a long time I suffered from stomach trouble," said Mrs. Carrie Betz, 604 North High street, Bethlehem, Pa. "My appetite was poor and there was an awful pain in the pit of my stomach. I was constipated and was always taking strong laxatives. I was weak and rundown and discouraged over my inability to find relief."

"Konjola was recommended to me and I decided to give it a trial. After a short treatment my appetite improved, bowels are regular and the poisons have been driven from my system. I haven't had a headache for some time and I don't have the terrible pains in my stomach. Konjola proved itself to me, and I am glad to recommend it to others."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

FARM SCHOOL ELEVEN EXPECTS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12.—Rich in football tradition National Farm School's student body of 165 huskies from practically every state in the union is looking forward to the greatest year in the history of the pigskin game on the Green and Gold campus. Coach Samuel B. Samuels, former Massachusetts Aggies star is making no advance predictions other than a brief statement made yesterday "that things look good for a successful season; so good in fact that I am looking for a game on Sept. 28th, one week before we had intended to start off the longest and most difficult schedule in the history of the school."

Nine games have been scheduled to date, not counting the open date for Sept. 28 that may be filled by Elizabethtown College.

Taking the pre-season turnout as a whole, a group including 'varsity men, five from last year, "good" players of last year, new students entirely who will be eligible, and inexperienced players, the average weight of the line is between 180 and 185 pounds, while the backfield will average between 160 and 165 pounds.

Fifty candidates reported to Coach Samuels' first call for action ten days ago. Beef and brawn will be aplenty in the 1929 edition of the Farm School team. Two teams are well under way right now. Night skull practice has been in order for two weeks and the team looks good enough to open Sept. 28th.

Coach Samuels and Manager "Ted" Krause, of Philadelphia, used their heads this year in arranging the schedule. Although it is a more expensive proposition, owing to guarantees that have to be paid to visiting teams, every game on the schedule will be played at home on the Alumni Association Field.

A glimpse at the Farm School schedule this year speaks for itself:

Sept. 28.—Open date.
Oct. 5.—Gettysburg Academy, at home.
Oct. 12.—Stevens Trade School of Lancaster, Pa., at home.
Oct. 19.—Haverford College Junior Varsity, at home.
Oct. 26.—Temple University High School, at home.
Nov. 2.—Susquehanna University Junior Varsity, at home.
Nov. 9.—Drexel Freshmen, at home.
Nov. 16.—Central Evening High School, at home.
Nov. 23.—Brown Prep, at home.
Nov. 28.—Williamson Trade School, at home.

Five veterans are back on the squad this year, but the best of last year's great team is lost by graduation. In four years Farm School has lost but four games, and last year scored 297 points against her opponents' 18. The veterans back in Coach Samuels' squad include "Whitey" Geisling, former Glen Nor High star, and captain of this year's team, a guard; "Tiger" Seipp, former Germantown High player, a lineman; "Lanky" Grisdale, Frankford High, end; "Buck" Werrin, Central High, end; and "Jerry" Hartenbaum, Cleveland High, fullback.

Captain Geisling has been a 'varsity player for three years and upon his ability to lead a team Coach Samuels is building up around him a real team. Owing to the depleted ranks as a result of graduation last season, the squad of fifty players has been working hard to build up two teams that will uphold the tradition of Farm School's football history.

The most promising material for backfield positions include seven candidates, "Jerry" Hartenbaum, Cleveland High; "Bullet" Kleinman, George Washington High, New York; "Pirpo" Elsen, James Madison High of Brooklyn; "Cy" Podolfin, Germantown High, who looks promising for the quarterback position; "Silent" Broadbent, Tarrington High, of Connecticut; "Mule" Wattman, Altoona High; and "Mike" Lazarow, of Philadelphia, a freshman.

Line candidates who will give the opposition something to think about this year include among the outstanding men: "Woof" Rohbaugh, Beach Creek High, tackle; "Dym" Goldfarb, West Philadelphia High, tackle; "Biff" Edelman, New York City, tackle; "Bud" Macalack, Notre Dame High, of Indiana, tackle; "Smoke" Campbell, Phoenixville High, guard; "Whitey" Geisling, captain, Glen Nor High, guard; "Curley" Goldstein, Newport News High, guard; "Whitey" Dorman, Glen Nor High, center; "Tiger" Seipp, Germantown High, center; "Turk" Bawman, Philadelphia, end, and several other promising candidates.

Coach Samuels has closed a contract with Doylestown Central Board officials, Raymond Wodock and Joseph Steelman, to officiate at all the games. On Sept. 21 a game has been arranged between the first and second teams when Charlie Eckles and Charlie Price, two of the outstanding college football officials, will officiate and assist Coach Samuels in the first formal workout in action.

This year the Optimist Club, of Philadelphia, an organization of business and professional men, have taken a special interest in the team and have contributed freely to the Farm School Athletic Association treasury for the purchase of additional football equipment. As a result of this, no team in the entire state will be better equipped than Farm School this year.

Second Enrollment of Beginners in Schools

There is room available for a few more beginning pupils in Bath, Washington and Beaver street public buildings. Children who will be six years of age on or before the first of December, living between Lafayette and Franklin streets will be admitted to the Washington street school; those children living between Otter and Beaver streets will be admitted to the Bath street school; those children living on Beaver street beyond Garden street will be admitted to the Beaver street school by presenting a certificate of vaccination, birth certificate and a director's permit to the teacher in charge.

Pupils in the second enrollment will be admitted in the order of their application beginning Monday, September 16, 1929. The second enrollment for beginners will be held open until October 1, 1929, or until the number of pupils allotted to each room has been reached. The primary grades in the Harrison, Jefferson and Wood street school buildings are already filled with beginning pupils so that it will not be possible to admit any more in these three buildings at this time.

Miss Zoe Gould, of Edgely; Miss Edith Vandegrift and Miss Jess Fins, of Wood street, motored to Coatesville, Monday evening and visited friends.

TENNIS CLUB TO MEET

A special meeting of the Hulmeville Tennis Club has been called for tonight, at 7.15. All members are requested to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Britton and Mr. and Mrs. John Burtonwood, of Washington street, were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Britton's sister, Mrs. Henry Bisbing, of Trenton.

Boys See Athletics Defeat Chicago "Sox"

appreciate the hospitality of their host.

The visit of the boys to Shibe Park was the climax to Boys' Week and the problem of transporting them to and from Shibe Park was a huge problem. The transportation was ably taken care of by the Trenton, Bristol & Philadelphia Street Railway Company and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

All of the boys were safely loaded in the cars and the trip went off without a mishap. Minot J. Hill and Elmer Harrison, officials of the Trenton, Bristol & Philadelphia Street Railway Co., supervised the loading into the cars of their company and they are to be congratulated upon the manner in which this detail was taken care of. It required five cars.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company had eight cars at Torresdale waiting to receive the boys and transport them to Shibe Park. A supervisor was on hand to direct the loading of the boys and a supervisor was also present at Shibe Park for the return trip home.

Police from the 27th District, Philadelphia, had a detail assigned to Torresdale and they greatly aided in assisting the boys to get into the trolley cars.

Franklin Gilkeson was in charge of the loading arrangements here at Bristol.

tol and he saw that every avenue to possible accident was closed. There were no mishaps of any consequence and despite the fact that the boys were wild in their excitement, not the slightest injury was reported.

"Lefty" Grove, the A's twirler, was busy warming up when it was time for him to toss some balls into the Bristol group, as he had promised to do so Russell "Lena" Blackburn, manager of the Chicago "White Sox," and a former Bristol ball player, personally autographed over a dozen new balls and threw them among the Bristol boys. This brought a rousing cheer for Blackburn and was much appreciated by the Bristol lads.

John Sackville, of Bristol, transported what crippled boys there were to go. Mr. Sackville took the lads down in his sedan drive to the park and the youngsters were admitted first and provided with good seats.

Many men from Bristol, especially the members of the two service clubs, went along to aid in keeping order. Louis Wetling, Arthur P. Brady, Er. These included Supt. of Schools Howard E. James, Charles I. Bowen, nest Gamble, Howard Smoyer, Thomas Lever, John Lynn and a number of others.

In their excitement some of the boys went without their lunch but they made up for this at the Torresdale refreshment stand where they bought out the entire stand. Sandwich vendors at the ball park did a thriving business.

Two little boys showed up after the last trolley had left Bristol and they burst into tears as they realized their plight. But their tears were changed to smiles when a passing motorist volunteered to get them to Torresdale in time to catch the P. R. T. cars.

The T. B. & P. used six trolleys and the P. R. T. had eight so the youngsters had plenty of room for the long part of their journey. One little fellow became slightly ill while going through Philadelphia but quickly recovered through the attentions of Louis Wetling who was on that particular car.

The game was thoroughly enjoyed, especially when the final result showed the Athletics winners. The only regret was to see "Lefty" Grove quit the box after the inning when he had struck out the first two men and had two strikes on the third. But they thoroughly enjoyed the A's hitting in their half of the first inning when they came back and scored seven big runs. The rest of the game was tight.

Thomas Collier was chairman of the committee handling the entire affair and the success of the trip was due to his efforts. If "Tom" Collier was running for president and if the boys could vote, Collier would win with hands down.
